could continue their education. With growing unrest in Myanmar, safety and limited resources were of concern. The team began growing vegetables—a creative way to reduce food costs and minimize their travel. Students learned new skills and improved their nutrition.

“We thank God, for He is working through our ministries despite the challenges,” says Lilian. “We also see that the needs of the people are met through our projects and can testify to God’s grace in their lives. We experienced that God is working among His people in a new way. He is leading us to walk through every circumstance.”

Please pray for God’s continued leading and guidance in the Golden Triangle Region through the pandemic. Pray for Lilian and Joseph, and the mission partners and their families; that they would be able to support each other and work together to serve the Lord and the local people. Pray for the coming school year and its students; for Lilian’s physical and spiritual strength as she prepares to teach two courses this summer.

PASTOR XIAODAN GANG serves with CBM’s Chinese Ministries Team, ministering to Chinese students in the university town of Marburg, Germany. Germany offers free, quality education so many Chinese students make it their temporary home, even though the transition can be isolating and alienating. Many students encounter the gospel there for the first time, joining a church, getting involved in ministry groups, and even serving the church and community. In partnership with a local organization called Forum of Mission to Chinese in Germany (FMCD), and together with local churches, Pastor Gang helps lead fellowship groups, Bible studies, services and training programs for new leaders.

In this second year of the COVID-19 pandemic, the ministry continues online, making getting to know new students and building relationships more challenging. However, Pastor Gang shares: "It's very encouraging to see how the people in our church continue in their faithful relationship with the Lord. As far as it is possible, I meet people personally to build relationships and for discipling. This season is a good time for discipleship!"

A German reading group also started several months ago, which has been an excellent opportunity to reach students. Sharing God's hope, grace and love is needed now more than ever.

The challenge of a transient college ministry is that students come and go, but it also provides an opportunity to share the gospel with a larger demographic.

Pray that as students leave and pursue other opportunities, they will find people who support them and continue to disciple them in Christ.

God continues to work in and through the local church, no matter the circumstance. It is because of your generous ongoing partnership to act as the hands, feet and hope of Jesus across the globe in all seasons, that we continue to witness God's faithfulness at work. ■

A HISTORY MOMENT

Holke and Her Boys

A story from our past to inspire our present

As Amelia "Holke" Holcum lies dying in a Sarnia hospital in 1948, she calls for a Baptist pastor. Rev. S. R. McClung of Central Baptist comes to her bedside. He finds a small, very old Black woman who is thought to be between 95 and 105. "You are going to bury me in about two weeks," she tells him. "My boys will be there. Be good to them." Pastor McClung is puzzled, as Amelia has no known living relatives. Less than two weeks later, he pronounces the benediction at her funeral. No one in the crowd of people of all ages, black and white, leaves. One man comes forward and says, "I was a drunk. Holke got hold of me and took me in. Now I am a sergeant in the police." Another steps forward: "In the Depression I was homeless and desperate. Holke took me in for three months until I got on my feet." In all, 24 men tell how they had found direction and courage in the little frame house Amelia had helped her husband build before his death many years ago.

The Sarnia Canadian Observer takes up the story of this "true Christian," one of 14 children born to a Baptist pastor in Buxton, near Chatham.
